Dear [MP's name],

I am one of your constituents and I am very concerned about Bill C-7 and the changes to Canada's law on medical assistance in dying (MAID).

Canadians living with disabilities and chronic illness, as well as other vulnerable people, already have difficulty getting the support they need to live. Removing the end of life requirement from the MAID law puts these Canadians at even greater risk.

I oppose changes to remove safeguards from the MAID law for those whose death is foreseeable, like the 10-day reflection period, the ability to consent at the time of death or the requirement for two independent witnesses. I urge you to keep these safeguards.

It is essential that the government protect vulnerable Canadians from abuse and harm. I urge you to reintroduce an end of life requirement in the MAID law.

Also, please add specific, meaningful conscience protection for healthcare workers and institutions to Bill C-7.

Sincerely,

[your name]
